

Enabling Approach with HACC Clients

An enabling approach focuses on 'doing with' and supports the person 'to do' rather than 'doing for' or 'doing to' the person.

Overview

Evidence from around the world shows that when well targeted and implemented, an enabling approach in community care can benefit people by building their confidence and self esteem, empowering them by actively involving them in decisions about their care needs, enhancing their autonomy and independence and improving their personal wellbeing and quality of life.

An enabling approach is consistent with the aims of the HACC program. These aims are to:

- provide a comprehensive, coordinated and integrated range of basic maintenance and support services for frail aged people, people with a disability and their carers
- support these people to be more independent at home and in the community, thereby enhancing their quality of life and/or preventing their inappropriate admission to residential care
- provide flexible, timely services that respond to the needs of consumers.
